National action plan for climate-friendly shipping

In the Federal Transport Ministry in Berlin today, the starting signal for the development of the national action plan for climate-friendly shipping was given. As a federal government initiative, the action plan is being developed under the leadership of the Federal Ministry for Digital and Transport (BMDV) and the Federal Ministry for Economic Affairs and Climate Action (BMWK) ...

Funding to continue for commercially used fast-charging points

As part of the funding call for the construction of commercial fast-charging infrastructure, companies were able to apply for funding last autumn to buy and install fast-charging points for commercial use. The associated civil engineering work and grid connection costs were also eligible for funding. The BMDV have already been able to support the installation of around 6,000 fast-charging points in the amount of about 100 million euros ...

German-American exchange on sustainable mobility

Deputy Secretary of Transportation of the United States of America, Polly Trottenberg, visited NOW GmbH in Berlin. She primarily informed herself about the federal government's approach to expanding charging infrastructure, particularly with regard to the work carried out in the National Centre for Charging Infrastructure. Discussion points included the 'Germany network' (Deutschlandnetz), the fast-charging network for cars, as well as the planned initial charging network for e-trucks and the significance of trucks with fuel cell drives ...
